DETAILED ACTIONSpecification

Applicant is reminded of the proper content of an abstract of the disclosure.

A patent abstract is a concise statement of the technical disclosure of the patent and should include that which is new in the art to which the invention pertains. If the patent is of a basic nature, the entire technical disclosure may be new in the art, and the abstract should be directed to the entire disclosure. If the patent is in the nature of an improvement in an old apparatus, process, product, or composition, the abstract should include the technical disclosure of the improvement. In certain patents, particularly those for compounds and compositions, wherein the process for making and/or the use thereof are not obvious, the abstract should set forth a process for making and/or use thereof. If the new technical disclosure involves modifications or alternatives, the abstract should mention by way of example the preferred modification or alternative.

The abstract should not refer to purported merits or speculative applications of the invention and should not compare the invention with the prior art.

Where applicable, the abstract should include the following:

- (1) if a machine or apparatus, its organization and operation;
- (2) if an article, its method of making;
- (3) if a chemical compound, its identity and use;
- (4) if a mixture, its ingredients;
- (5) if a process, the steps.

Extensive mechanical and design details of apparatus should not be given.

Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

The abstract of the disclosure is objected to because the Abstract contains "said" and "means". Correction is required. See MPEP § 608.01(b).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 1, lines 10 it is not clear as to what the "protection means" encompasses. Is it a tape, a strap or loops or a combination of some or all disclosed.

In claim 2 it is not clear as to how the opening includes the leg holes.

In claim 3 it is not clear as to whether the protection means are attached to the outer overlapping part or as to when they are "placed" or how. In claim 4 a list of materials are included however it is not clear as to which is being claimed. Applicant should state that "any one of " the materials are included. Also it is not clear as to what "suitable for straps or tapes" encompasses or as to what is exactly being claimed. In claims 5 and 7 it is not clear as to where or how the ribbons or loops are included or attached as the protection means. In claim 9 there is no antecedent basis for "the whole edge".

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

Art Unit: 3765

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by O'Brien (US 2,396,599).

O'Brien discloses a pair of underpants 10 with a front part, a back part(11), a crotch part and two leg holes within 12 with connecting means for connecting the crotch part 21 to the front part and to allow an opening in the crotch area in addition to releasable connecting means 33,34,42,43,44 extending from one leg hole to the other. The connecting means includes flexible protection means 42, as broadly claimed and as best understood. The opening in the crotch area includes the leg holes adjacent thereto to outline the opening as broadly claimed. The opening has not been claimed as extending within the leg openings to form a single large opening. The protection means 42 are placed on the outer overlapping part 33,34, of the connecting means. The protection means 42 are made of the materials as claimed. The protection means are considered to be ribbons 42 or loops 43,44 as broadly claimed. The length, diameters and width appear to be those claimed as seen in the figures. (See O'Brien, figures 1,2,4 and 5 and page 1, left col. ,line 45 – page 2, left col. ,line 24)

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
